

Sales Executive - Social Alarm

Bosch Security Systems have successfully launched their new Social Alarm products into the UK and Irish markets and as a result created a new position that will have responsibility for promoting, developing and growing this new area of business.

Reporting to a Senior Manager the successful candidate, as well as being enthusiastic, self disciplined and motivated, will have a proven track record in sales and an appropriate level of technical knowledge to follow up enquiries. The individual is also expected to possess experience of dealing with the major buyers of social alarm products, including the likes of Housing Associations, local Authorities and charitable organisations.

As part of the world-wide Robert Bosch Group, the successful candidate will receive a full corporate package with basic salary based on experience, performance related bonus, company car, pension and flexible benefits.
